

Megan Allred Weirich

mallredweirich.wordpress.com

mallredweirich@gmail.com

510.457.5568

IG: @allredy_lucky_

"Art is way to channel your deepest desires, emotions, and higher self. Through subconscious visions, we are able to tap into our life's purpose. I seek to investigate spirituality, archetype imagery, and unity of our innate human nature and experience through art."

Untitled

Acrylic Paint on sewn denim jean canvas

4' x 4'

$3000

Small animals from land, sea, and air are webbed together by the collective conscience. The micro, macro, domestic, and wild.

Elemental Serpents

Acrylic Paint on Canvas triptych

2.75' x 6'

$2700

Depicted are 4 mythical dragons/serpents based on the 4 elements; Earth, Water, Air/Ether, and Fire. They embody the spirit realms which these elements interact and weave together in the seen and unseen world.

Megan Allred Weirich

mallredweirich.wordpress.com

mallredweirich@gmail.com

510.457.5568

IG: @allredy_lucky_

Root (Muladhara)

Acrylic Paint, Bike Tire, and Hubcap on Cardboard
$350

The Root Chakra relate to concepts of survival, stability, basic needs, food, shelter, and scent. The Fire element is contrasted by the appearance of water and the effects heavy industrialism is having on the ecosystem specifically the Arctic Poles and cold weather regions experiencing destruction due to climate change.

Sacral (Swadhistana)

Acrylic Paint, Bike Tire, and Hubcap on Cardboard
$300

The Sacral Chakra is ruled by the water element. The energy center aligns with our reproductive organs and lower back. It is characterized by sexuality, creativity, balance and the color orange.

Chakra means wheel.

These literal wheels depict energy centers in the human body. Each center has a psycho-spiritual significance in every human body. Our Physical needs and spiritual needs are directly related to one another, transcended by our ability to become aware of their relationship. Through seated meditation, one can access these energy centers, and bring more awareness to their mind and body connection (also know as yoga or union).

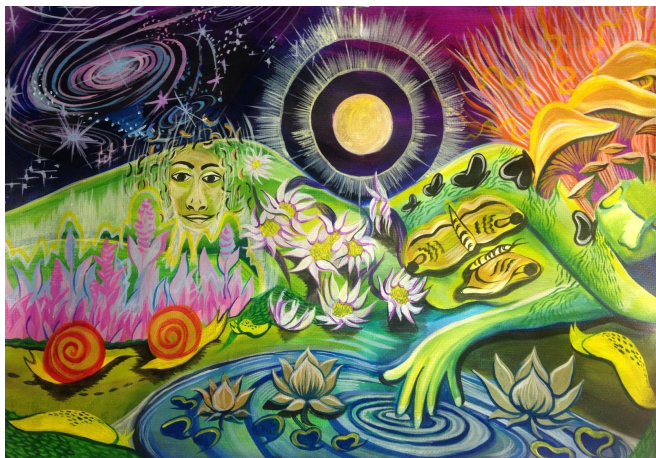

Megan Allred Weirich

mallredweirich.wordpress.com

mallredweirich@gmail.com

510.457.5568

IG: @allredy_lucky_

Mt. Tam Spirit Realm

Acrylic Paint on Paper

11" x 14"

$175

Prints available(inquire within)

The sleeping lady is an iconic piece of the landscape. This painting was inspired by a young dancer from San Jose who died of cancer.

Flower Child

Acrylic Paint on Paper

11" x 14"

Make an Offer

Prints available(inquire within)

Duality is depicted, reframing and visiting concepts of evil and innocence. Whose to say which force will take precedence, equally powerful and apart of our expansion into the present, available and embraceable by choice. In this case the rabbit and snake are depicted as dual forces.

Megan Allred Weirich

mallredweirich.wordpress.com
mallredweirich@gmail.com
510.457.5568
IG: @allredy_lucky_

Toytoise

Acrylic Paint, Bike Tire, and Hubcap on Cardboard
$175

Innovation of communication technology and industry are exploited and exploiting the planet. The frequencies and wavelengths omitted in order communicate by animals is very similar to device technology.

Deer Girl

Acrylic Paint on Canvas triptych
$500

Prints Available (inquire within)

Based on the memories that aided in transformation of the mind; imprints of nature and spirit moving and speaking through me.